Letitia,

You can confirm this with Lewis, who was at the meeting, but my sense was that when OSCO heard that all the government entities (EPA, State DOH, Navy) were most immediately concerned with measures to address the human health and safety aspect of this, i.e. spray cap to stabilize the surface, etc., as opposed to spending more money to do more characterizations, samples, etc., Tamara Edwards and Lisa Munger seemed to get a lot more responsive. Given that, I'd be inclined to see what OSCO, in conjunction with their consultant BEI, comes up with. With the clear understanding that our meeting was on the 2nd, and so it's been over 2 weeks now, so we cannot let this drag indefinitely.

Hello there! I'm back.

I've received copies of both the Navy's letter and OSCO's letter. I also have the notes from the meeting with OSCO.

What does this all mean? What are your thoughts?

When do you expect to hear from OSCO concerning "temporary measures," who will implement the "temporary measures," and when will such measures be implemented?

Thanks,
